(. The restriction requirement is modified as follows: article claims 1-12 and 39 have been included with elected process of using claims 28-38. Apparatus claims 12-27 and 40-42 remain as a separate Group for the reasons of record. The "altering" step can be performed by hand or by another apparatus.

- 2. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 USC 112 (2) as being indefinite in the recital of "adding material" to an article claim. The data storage medium of claim 1 can have removable "altering means" but it cannot have altering means which are not actually there.
- 3. Claims 1-6, 8, 10, 11 and 39 are rejected under 35 USC 102 (b) as being anticipated by the patent to Rollhaus et al. (USP 6,011,772).

Claims 1-6, 8-11 and 39 are rejected under 35 USC 102 (b) as being anticipated by the patent to Dailey et al. (USP 6,228,440).

Claims 1-6 and 8-11 are rejected under 35 USC 102 (a) as being anticipated by the patent to Lawandy et al. (USP 6,531,262).

All three of these patents teach data storage media comprising a means for permanent alteration by an external source. In Rollhaus et al. and Lawandy et al., the means are removable layers while in Dailey et al. the means is a layer which changes its physical properties. Once these altering means are activated, the removed or physically changed data cannot be read by another data rendering system.

4. Claims 28-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over any of the patents to Rollhaus et al., Dailey et al. or Lawandy et al.

Access to other data rendering systems is denied once the alteration is performed. If one of ordinary skill in this art questioned the success of the aforementioned alteration, an alteration test would have been the obvious solution. Finally, selection of the type of data (e.g., restrictive covenants) contained on the data storage media of the references would have been an obvious design choice on the part of one of ordinary skill in this art.
